

In our immediate rearview mirrors

It is hard to believe what America and likely millions around the globe watched in the recent Senate hearing concerning the appointment of Brett Kavanaugh – namely the accusations levied by Christine Blasey in her testimony.

The following was forwarded to me by a friend recapping Ms. Blasey's claims. "Here's what we know about Christine Blasey Ford, the left-wing activist and political pawn that Diane Feinstein used to stop Brett Kavanaugh confirmation to the Supreme Court.

1. She had been silent about this "incident" for 36 years.
2. She told NO one when it happened.
3. She told NO girlfriends.
4. She told NO guy friends.
5. She told NO parents.
6. She told NO teachers.
7. She told NO police.
8. She can't remember whose house

And some more background on the key accuser taken from the internet – "Christine Blasey-Ford, the 51-year-old woman who has come out of the woodwork at the last minute, accusing Brett Kavanaugh of attempting to sexually assault her as a teenager, has a brother who worked for a law firm that retained Fusion GPS, the primary "fixer" for the Clintons and the DNC.

Ralph Blasey, brother of Christine Blasey-Ford, worked as a Litigation Partner for Baker Hostetler, a law firm that retained Fusion GPS, the infamous D.C. company that produced the unverified Steele dossier on President Donald Trump and Russia, sparking the whole Russian collusion investigation.

In January, Yahoo Finance explained the role Baker Hostetler played in the Deep State's attempts to bring down the duly elected President of the United States:

How did Baker Hostetler become a supporting character in the geopolitical drama over Russian meddling in the U.S. election, with possible implications for the fate of the Trump administration? The simple version? It was partly a matter of luck. The firm was tapped beginning in at she was in.

9. She can't remember how she got to the house.
10. She can't remember how she left the house.
11. She can't remember the names of anyone at the party.
12. She suddenly remembers an assault in 2012 –vaguely.
13. She tells a therapist in 2012 that FOUR boys assaulted her.
14. She changes the number to TWO in 2018.
15. She doesn't tell the therapist any of their names.
16. She has NO evidence that she ever even knew Kavanaugh.
17. She has NO evidence he was ever at a party.
18. She has NO evidence she ever spoke with him.
19. She has NO eyewitnesses, except Mark Judge, she claims.
17. She is "absolutely nuts," says Mark Judge.

least 2013 to defend a Cypriot company, Prevezon Holdings Ltd., against U.S. money laundering accusations. Natalia Velsnitskaya, the Russian lawyer who met Donald Trump Jr. in June 2016 reportedly with the intent to provide information damaging to Hillary Clinton's presidential campaign was also working for Prevezon.

And Fusion GPS, the company that produced the infamous Steele dossier on President Donald Trump and Russia, was also retained by Baker Hostetler amid the Prevezon litigation.

Just when you thought we had plumbed the depths of the D.C. swamp, we find that the swamp goes deeper, much deeper, yet. The sheer audacity of the dirty tricks Democrats are prepared to employ right now, months before the midterms, is mind-boggling.

The fact Christine Blasey-Ford's brother worked for Baker Hostetler could be a mere coincidence. But when the number of "coincidences" in the case of Kavanaugh's accuser are added up, a picture of enemy action begins to become clear.

"Once is happenstance. Twice is coincidence. Three times is enemy action."
– Ian Fleming.

18. She is represented by a left-wing activist lawyer who opposes Brett Kavanaugh and Donald Trump.

Seriously, there is zero evidence, zero proof, zero witnesses, and zero credibility. It was supposedly an unknown incident, at an unknown location, involving unknown people, on an unknown date.

But now she sends a letter to Diane Feinstein, who is so concerned about the contents of this letter that she does NOTHING with it for two and one-half months after receiving it. She doesn't question Kavanaugh about it in their private meeting. She doesn't question him during the confirmation hearings. She doesn't give it to the FBI for review when she gets it. She doesn't tell the GOP about its existence – until three days before the confirmation vote.

This is the worst 11th hour, Hail Mary, attempt to snatch victory from the jaws of defeat ever done by an opposition party."

Let's pause and recap. The accuser's parents were foreclosed by Brett Kavanaugh's mother. The accuser's husband has worked for the primary "fixer" for Hillary and the DNC. The accuser is a leftist academic who made no mention of the current accusation for three decades. The accusation was known by Diane Feinstein for months but withheld until after the hearings were over.

Are these facts all coincidences? Or are we witnessing enemy action in progress?

Of course, mainstream media claims there is nothing remotely suspicious about any of the above facts. Having said that, mainstream media would prefer you didn't know about those facts, just in case they equip you with the ability to make up your own mind about the issue of whether the accusations against Brett Kavanaugh are credible or not.

God forbid you actually take in all of the relevant information, weigh up the case, and decide for yourself.

After all, it is the role of mainstream media to tell you what to think. At least according to MSNBC's Mika Brzezinski and CNN's Chris Cuomo."
